Conflict resolution for young people by young people

Programme Director

- Do you believe young people can learn to handle conflict well?
- Are you a skilled leader with a track record of strategic development, managing people and change and designing creative programmes?

Salary: £36,000 - £38,000 full-time, permanent, flexible location, Sheffield office base

CRESST has shown that with training and support, young people can learn the skills to navigate difficult conversations and manage conflict constructively. We are seeking an inspirational leader to shape CRESST's future as an expanding, vibrant organisation, seizing new opportunities to extend its scope and reach in order to make a difference across South Yorkshire and beyond. Going forward, we see a world where conflict resolution skills are needed more than ever.

The new Programme Director will join our organisation at an exciting time when we are ready to relaunch our programmes working with schools, promote our new resources and realise an ambitious future for the charity. We are looking for someone who can champion CRESST's ethos, values and approach. They will need excellent knowledge of conflict resolution skills and approaches, understanding of young people's daily lives and the huge challenges they face, and be able to devise effective programmes to meet those needs. Building on our reputation as a centre of excellence, we expect the new post holder to bring creativity and innovation to CRESST's work. They will embed anti-discriminatory practices into every aspect of our activities, ensuring learning is relevant to young people including those from marginalised communities and will benefit their schools and youth organisations.

Closing date midnight Sunday 28th March 2021
