CRESST
Conflict resolution for young people by young people

Programme Manager

- Can you inspire young people to gain confidence and skills in handling conflict well?
- Do you have experience of working with groups of young people to deliver lively workshops to engage them in learning life skills?
- Can you engage young people from marginalised communities in creative projects?

Salary: £28,000 - £30,000 pro rata, 28 hours/week (0.8fte) , flexible location, Sheffield office base

CRESST is looking for an experienced trainer/teacher who can establish partnerships with secondary schools and youth organisations and can design and deliver interactive creative programmes relevant to young people. You will have excellent relationship building and groupwork/facilitation skills. Working with other trainers and partner organisations, you will build on CRESST's high quality content to engage and work with young people to equip them with life skills and co-create new resources. You need to bring understanding of the challenges young people face, skills in designing face-to-face and online workshops and curiosity to continue your learning about conflict resolution. Your contribution will continue to build our reputation as a centre of excellence.
