About the Civil Mediation Council

The CMC is a charity which aims to promote the resolution of conflicts and disputes by encouraging the use of mediation and other dispute resolution techniques and methods and to advance the education of the public in matters related to this.

The Civil Mediation Council is the largest registering organisation for mediation in England and Wales and many of the country's top mediators are CMC members. We believe that the whole of society will benefit from the greater use of mediation. This is why the CMC is a UK charity where all Board and Working Group members are volunteers who stand to make no personal gain from their work.

The CMC is a membership organisation, providing the public with a list of qualified mediators. A mediator's CMC registered status guarantees that they will have undertaken an approved training, follow a professional code of conduct and are committed to continued professional development.

About London International Disputes Week

London International Disputes Week (LIDW) is a forward-thinking forum which aims to:

- Explore and contribute to the future of international dispute resolution
- Represent London's dispute resolution community
- Celebrate London as a leading centre for handling the resolution of international disputes, whatever the sector or form of dispute resolution, such as arbitration, litigation and mediation
- Demonstrate legal London's genuine commitment to diversity, inclusion and the rule of law

LIDW aims to achieve these goals by bringing together all the stakeholders in the global dispute resolution community to debate and explore the key issues and topics, and to help drive awareness and best practice globally.
